SGL Weekly Newsletter – 24th July 2009

Hello, hello!

Hope you all enjoyed the games on Sat. Congrats to Gaelic Lions FC who came out tops in the foreign sport and to the Langers who kicked some Sweet Cheek ass in the final of the real football. Call me modest... but I wouldn't say this was 100% due to the fact that I was on the team. I mean... I suppose the rest of the team deserve some credit also... Then again, maybe not!

Anyhow, it was a great day followed by an equally great night at Muddy's. Big thanks to Gary and everyone else who helped in organising the day.

Race Night... Tonight! Yee ha!

Very excited about tonight. I'm defo due a big win after betting and losing on EVERY SINGLE race last time I went...

Old tactic: go for the jockeys with the pretty jersey patterns...

New tactic: copy Ally!

If there are any last minute extras, we still have a few places, so bring them along!

There will be one race every half hour from 6:30 to 10:30, so aim to be there at some stage between 6 and 7 if possible. Denise will be at reception until 6:30 and after that there will be a sign and security directing ye to the Orchid room.

For those of us who are not seasoned gamblers, there'll be someone there at 7 to explain how to place a bet.

A buffet dinner will be served at 7 and we'll have a bar and a tote in our private room.

If anyone is driving, we have some parking coupons, so please call Denise on 90703464 to arrange getting one.

Dress code is smart casual - no tattered jeans, shorts, bermudas, T-shirts without collars and/or sleeves (wife-beaters??), slippers (flip flops/thongs depending on whether you speak real English or Australian) or sandals.

Mobiles should be switched on silent.

Quote of Week:

As you all know, we take our reporting duties very seriously and thus I feel obliged to share with you what must qualify as the quote of the week... Something involving hot sauce, buns and wieners... although, I am starting to blush, so I don't think I can be anymore specific than that. I better keep this one anonymous to avoid any more potential slander cases, but let's just say, his/her name begins K, ends with M and does not have an 'I' in the middle... hint: in case you struggle with spelling, Joe Lyons is not the source for once...

Toucan Cup!!

The countdown is on to the ladies' trip to Tokyo. I was disappointed to find out that the prize for the Toucan cup is not, in fact, the Toucan - what's that about?! Fridell - we are not impressed!
