SGL Newsletter 8th January 2010

Well. We all survived

--The Welcome Back Drinks, the Sorry You're Not Home session, the Big Day Dinner, the St. Stephens' Day soiree --The rows, the fights, the door slamming, the vowing never to do this again --The tinsel as necklace, the fluffy antlers as headgear, the Christmas Pudding Woolly Jumper --The Soaps Christmas Special, RTEs dismal schedule & catching the countdown of Fanning's Fab 50 (do they still do that?) --The drunken calls on Skype, the giving out that they don't know the meaning of the word, whinging that Christmas is not Christmas when you're in a pair of flip flops. Missing a White One. --

Welcome to 2010, Gaelic Warriors.
I'm naming this The Year of the Bowl.

All Tied up in Knots

Like minor celebrities trying to get their Hello! Magazine spread, we had at least THREE SGL Festive weddings.

Mel Cassidy (nee Smith) floated up the aisle to her dream Irish wedding, while Michael and Shauna Boyle celebrated their blessing with family and friends in Donegal. Darragh (Brady NOT Lenihan) and Susan Curtin had a beautiful ceremony in Cork on New Years Eve.

We wish ye a long and happy life together

Get Knotted.

It's a one-in/one-out policy these days with diamond rings seemingly just falling from the sky.

Whether it was the magic of a Galway Castle or the harassment of a Catholic priest, Kieran and Orla have decided to hitch their wagons in a coming together of Gaelic Football powerhouses. I predict All-Star Offspring.

With the cup of romance overflowing, Dave "Welsh Rarebit" Richards did the decent thing and popped the question to Helen "Plank Off" Fridell. In a fully catered Christmas morning Proposal, out came the diamond and on went the celebrations.

Hel-ser has laid down the gamut on the Hen Weekend with these conditions -

"in a country where I do not have citizenship or reside, and it's difficult to get arrested"

Kym, do your worst.

Dubya

In preparation for the GGG in Feb, the Ladies GG are having their first 2010 session on this Saturday and for the next 5.

On from 10am-12pm at the Dempsey grounds, it's primarily for those heading to Dubai but really it'll be great for anyone who is around.
